

Sometimes people may tell me I'm not supposed to talk about something that happened.

It is ok to keep a secret about presents or surprises.

These secrets are ok because no one gets hurt.

If somebody could feel hurt or uncomfortable, I should not keep it a secret.

If someone tries to look at my private parts or asks me to look at their private parts, I should not keep it a secret.

Even if somebody tells me not to tell the secret, I should remember that keeping people safe is more important.

This campaign promotes the idea of body autonomy for individuals with disabilities. ASERT has partnered with researchers at the National Crime Victims Research and Treatment Center at the Medical University of South Carolina to develop resources for the Be Safe campaign.

The Autism Services, Education, Resources and Training (ASERT) Collaborative is a statewide initiative funded by the Bureau of Autism Services, PA Department of Human Services.
