

If bad things have happened to me, I might be asked to talk with a therapist.

Talking about what happened can be really hard.

The therapist will try to help me feel safe and calm.

The therapist might help me practice talking about the bad stuff that happened.

The therapist might help me practice things that are scary.

I will probably see the therapist every week to practice feeling safe and calm.

